

LOSS OF FEDERAL MATCHING FUNDS IS POSSIBILITY

Delay on Casey Old Age Assistance Bill May Cost The State

STARK LASHES OUT ON STATE AUDITOR

Says Politics Should Have No Part In Old Age Assistance

JEFFERSON CITY, May 26.—Governor Stark lashed out today at attempts of State Auditor Forrest Smith to retain the privilege of mailing old age assistance checks from his office.

"Politics should have nothing to do with old age assistance. It should be non-political," he told reporters at a morning press conference.

His remarks came while discussing an amendment to the Casey social security bill approved last night by the house social security committee. It would retain the present system of mailing old age assistance checks, criticized by the U. S. social security board officials as causing a "divided administration" of old age assistance.

The governor repeated today that delay on the Casey measure or changes not federally approved are "likely" to cause Missouri to lose U. S. matching of state old age assistance payments. He has urged passage of the bill before June 1, when Missouri must show the federal social security board why matching payments should not be withheld.

The house set consideration of the bill as a special order of business for 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Told that the auditor's office had mailed letters to those on the old age assistance rolls during the last campaign, the governor said "nothing of that kind should be allowed to jeopardize millions of dollars in federal money for old age pensions and aid to dependent children."

More than $15,000,000 in federal aid is expected for old age assistance alone during 1937-38.

Stark added that in his opinion collection of sales tax money should not be left in the auditor's office.

"It occurs to me that under the present setup we have a man who is supposed to audit others also collecting money and paying it out," the governor commented.

"Certainly both of these duties should not be in the auditor's office. His job should be to audit, and nothing else."

"There is no one to audit the auditor. There has never been an audit made of the millions of dollars taken in since the sales tax was inaugurated."

The governor, who accompanied Smith to the latter's home town of Richmond for dedication of a post-office yesterday, said "Forrest Smith is a friend of mine, and I'd say this to him as readily as to anyone."

Grants Are Held Up

Last night J. G. Tucker, Kansas City, a regional auditor for the board, told the committee $1,600,000 in U. S. old age grants for April, May and June were being held up pending the hearing.

Chairman Morris E. Osburn of the house committee said an effort would be made to get floor action on the bill before June 1, which is next Tuesday.

The senate also must act if the house accepts the amendments. Disagreement would throw the bill into a conference committee.

No attempt was made by the house to retain the requisitional method of pension payments, which the state auditor has said accounts for most of the new positions created in his office by the present old age assistance act.

One amendment was to place an emergency clause in the bill, placing it into effect immediately on passage and signature. The others were regarded as technical.

A. J. Altmyer, U. S. social security administrator, said today (Continued on page four)

FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL

Charles Bealer picked up for investigation and questioning by Chief of Police John J. O'Brien, this afternoon decided that he didn't belong in the city bastille and tried to break out.

Bealer torn away part of the plastering on the ceiling on the large room, then endeavored to kick the flooring loose in a room formerly occupied as police headquarters. Several boards had been loosened but not enough to permit him to crawl through.

Firemen hearing the noise went upstairs and looked into the room and saw the floor being kicked loose. They notified the police and the officers upon entering the jail found Bealer in a cell.

Charges of attempting to break fall will probably be filed in the court of Judge Charles W. Bente, sitting as ex-officio justice of the peace, late this evening.

CORN HIGHEST IN SEVENTEEN YEARS

CHICAGO, May 26.—A last minute "squeeze" in the corn market today skyrocketed the price of May corn more than five cents a bushel to $1.40, highest price for any corn contract here in 17 years.

Although "longs" in May corn, those that held contracts for delivery of the grain before the end of the month, could have demanded a full eight cents hoist in the value, they refused to accept their profits within seconds of the final bell, selling out at around $1.40.

It was the most sensational wind-up of trading in a grain contract on the board of trade in many months. Trading in May corn in the futures pit has ended but sellers have three days in which to make delivery.

SIMPLICITY IN BRIEF SERVICE FOR ROCKEFELLER

Final Respects to Philanthropist at Pocantico Hills Estate

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 26.—Brief funeral services, marked by a quiet simplicity in keeping with the late years of his life, were held today for John D. Rockefeller in the massive mansion of his Pocantico Hills estate.

The body of the 97-year-old philanthropist, who died Sunday at Orono Beach, Fla., rested on a flower-bedecked bier in the main hall near a great window overlooking the Hudson river to the west.

The Rockefeller family, headed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., close friends and a few long-time employees were seated in the library and dining room on either side of the hall.

The service lasted only half an hour. As the mourners entered the house, Archer Gibson, organist, played favorite selections of Mr. Rockefeller—Handel's Largo, Bach's Choral Prelude and the New World Symphony.

The Rev. Lester P. Brent, pastor of the Pocantico Hills Union church, opened the services by reading selections from the Psalms—the eighth verse in the 124th Psalm, the thirteenth and fourteenth verses of the 103rd Psalm—and from John 11, 23 and 26.

He read the invocation from the book of Common Worship prepared by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Miss Dorothea Flexer, contralto soloist of Riverside church, New York, to the building of which Mr. Rockefeller made large contributions, sang "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go."

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of Riverside church, in conducting the funeral service confined himself almost solely to selections from the scriptures.

He said a prayer in which he mentioned briefly "the creative foresight, pioneering courage, high standards of character, consciousness of stewardship" of Mr. Rockefeller.

The minister also called attention to "this world-wide philanthropy, his inner sincerity, his love of family and loyalty to his friends and his faith and hope."

At the conclusion of the services, some 100 employees of the estate entered the mansion and filed past the casket to pay their final respects to the master of Pocantico Hills.

UAW, OFFICIALS BEATEN AT GATES OF FORD PLANT

Organizing Director Was Knocked Down While On an Underpass

ATTACK AS LEAFLETS BLOWN AGAINST MEN

Strike On at Richmond, Calif., Plant of The Ford Company

DETROIT, May 26.—A group of workmen beat two high officials of the United Automobile Workers of America and chased them away this afternoon as union members began the distribution of literature at the gates of the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant.

Richard T. Frankenstein, directing the union's campaign to organize Ford workers, was knocked down a dozen times. His coat was torn from his back and his face was cut and bruised.

Walter Routhier, president of the union's west side local, suffered a bloody nose.

Two other union men also were pummeled. Their names were not obtained.

The four men fled along some street car tracks, the men in working clothes in close pursuit.

The altercation started on a pedestrian overpass crossing Miller Road at the Ford plant gate No. 4.

Frankenstein, Routhier and the other two union men, who had just arrived at the plant to distribute leaflets entitled "Unionism, Not Fordism," were posing for photographers on the runway when a group of men, dressed in working clothes, rushed toward them.

One witness said the fighting started when Frankenstein threw a bundle of leaflets into the air and they blew against some men on their way to work.

Frankenstein, a former college football player, went down at the first rush.

The four men were hustled down a stairway to the ground and prodded through a group of women wearing arm bands of the U. A. W. Women's Brigade. The women tried in vain to protect the union men.

A few hours earlier, Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, had stated that no attempt would be made by the company's service department to prevent the distribution of union literature.

He added that "of course, we can't say what the men will do."

After chasing Frankenstein, Routhier and his two companions, J. J. Kennedy, assistant organization director of the International Union, and Robert Cantor, west side local organizer, away, the attacking group proceeded to load the other union representatives, most of them women, on passing street cars.

Fifteen minutes after the fighting broke out, the crowd had been dispersed. Mounted Dearborn City policemen to no part in the affair, confining their activity to keeping spectators moving.

The photographers close to Frankenstein were chased off the bridge, and many of them lost the exposed plates from their cameras.

One woman in the union group, whose name was not immediately learned, said she had been kicked in the stomach as the men pushed the unionists onto the same street cars in which they had arrived at the scene.

RICHMOND, Calif., May 26.—Union workers at the Ford assembly plant here went on strike today and an official of the United Automobile Workers of America declared it was "the first gun in the war against Henry Ford."

Production ceased immediately and a mass picket line around the plant stopped admittance of company officials and non-union workers.

"Closed Before Strike"

DETROIT, May 26.—Harry Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor Co., said today that the Richmond, Calif., assembly plant had been closed in advance of a vote among the employees on a strike.

He said the plant "would be closed permanently if I had my way about it."

MISSOURI PACIFIC SHOPS SHUTDOWN FOR MONTH-END

The usual month-end shutdown at the Missouri Pacific shops was effective today and the scowmen, with the exception of the reclamation and supply departments forces, will be off duty until Tuesday, June 1, which carries them through Decoration Day, a holiday. The closing down is to keep within the appropriation for the month and men will be back at their duties as usual Tuesday.

Gives Bond In Check Case

Paul Gibbons arrested at Gilliam by Constable Forrest Poindexter on a charge of giving Dan McClure a bad check for $73, furnished a $500 bond for his appearance before Justice of the Peace Bell Hutchinson on June 5.

"NO WORK" BY GIRL ON STATE PAYROLL

By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, May 26.—Miss Dorothy Schroer, whose name has been on the state payroll as a legislative clerk at Jefferson City at $3 a day since February 9, was quoted today by the Post-Dispatch as saying she had done no work as a clerk and had not received any of the salary warrants issued in her name.

Her name was put on the payroll, the newspaper said, by certification of Representatives Edwin G. Foerst and Michael R. Kennedy, both of St. Louis, and she was assigned to them as their personal clerk. Neither Foerst nor Kennedy could be reached for a statement.

The salary warrants, seven in number and totaling $475, were indorsed with Miss Schroer's name, the Post-Dispatch said, and apparently, since they bore no other indorsement, were cashed in the state treasurer's office at Jefferson City.

Miss Schroer, 18 years old, has been employed steadily for more than two years in the factory of a tailoring company, the newspaper asserted. She was quoted as saying she had been in Jefferson City only once, on a 1-day pleasure trip several years ago, and had never been in the state capital.

The girl recalled, the newspaper said, that Foerst, a friend of her family, had made a remark to her several months ago about working for him in Jefferson City.

"But I didn't pay any attention to it," she added, according to the newspaper's account, "because I thought it was a joking remark. It was in a bowling alley where we both bowled."

PENALTY AFTER JUNE 1 UNLESS STATE INCOME TAX PAID

Tuesday, June 1, is the last day on which state income taxes may be paid before the penalty is added. In as much as Monday is a holiday, and the collector's office will be closed, there are only four more days in which it may be paid without penalty.

J. B. Greer, county collector, stated that scarcely one-third of the payments have been made so far.

SENATE DEBATES PROPOSED 3-CENT GAS TAX HIKE

Indications Vote Not Reached Until Late In Afternoon

JEFFERSON CITY, May 26.—The proposed 3-cent gasoline tax was warmly defended and vigorously opposed in senate debate this morning, but indications were a vote would not be reached until late afternoon.

Noon hour adjournment came with several speakers yet to be heard.

Senator Clyde Cope, Salem, asked by Governor Stark to handle the measure on the floor, said much of the opposition to it by oil and gasoline interests was inspired by selfish motives.

He said the one-cent-a-gallon tax increase, effective in December, 1938, would result in the state's having 16 1/2 million dollars a year to spend on roads, while its failure would leave only 8 million.

If the tax is not liked, Cope said, only 4 million in state funds will be available, matched by 4 million in federal funds.

The increase would provide a total of 10 million in state funds, plus federal matching of 4 1/2 million—the maximum allowable.

Senator Allen McReynolds, Carthage, said he was not necessarily opposed to a gasoline tax increase as such but "I support the view of the highway commission in its annual report that we are not ready to give an answer to this question at this time."

"It is a strange proceeding for this general assembly to reach forward two years to increase this tax when the next legislature will be in session only a month after the present 2-cent tax limit expires," he said.

"Are we going to do it because we can't sit still in our seats in our desire to put more taxes on the people?"

Senator Will G. Lockridge, Fayette, said it is "absurd to argue that Missouri needs to increase this tax at this time."

He attributed much of his opposition to the gas tax hike to failure of the house ways and means committee to approve a bill by himself and Cope cutting license fees.

"I dare that committee to put that bill out on the house floor," he said. "It would pass almost by unanimous vote."

THREE LOSE LIVES IN DYNAMITE BLAST

SCOTTSDALE, Pa., May 26.—(CP)—Three boys were blown to bits Tuesday in an explosion that demolished a dynamite warehouse near Pine Tree, two miles from this Westmoreland county coal town.

Coroner H. A. McMurray's office identified the boys as Wilbur Searchrist, 16, and Boyd Long, both students at Scottsdale high school, and Howard Stull, 15, of nearby Huntingdon township.

The investigators said they believed the boys had been using a rifle found near the scene to shoot target against the building. One bullet was discharged from the rifle.

The bodies were found about 50 feet from the twisted timbers of the old frame building which had been used for storing blasting powder sold to nearby coal mines.

A huge crater marked the site of the building.

The blast shook this town and shattered windows in hundreds of homes and in many stores.

FRENCH PLANE IS DOWNED BY FIRE OF INSURGENTS

Pilot of Transport Craft and Spanish Passenger Wounded

GEN. MOLA'S FORCES NEARER BILBAO

Civil Population of Lemona Evacuated Before Troops Arrive

BILBAO, Spain, May 26.—Machine gun bullets from an insurgent fleet of warplanes downed a French "Air-Pyrenees" transport plane near today and wounded the French pilot and a Spanish passenger.

The plane was damaged badly both by the bullets and by the force of a "pancake" landing on sandy soil near Sopelana, 13 miles north of here, behind Basque government war lines.

The wounded pilot and the Spanish passenger—one of four—were brought by automobile to Bilbao and placed in a hospital. Both are expected to recover. All the passengers were Spaniards.

The plane was approaching the mouth of the Nervion river, towards the coast from Bilbao, when seven insurgent planes, described by basques as a German-built fleet, were reported to have raked it with machine gun fire.

The pilot, Jean Gally, a veteran and war-wise former French army flier, dived and made a pancake landing on open ground near Sopelana.

The windows of the transport's cabin were reported to have been perforated by dozens of bullets.

An Air Fran. Line transport was brought down north of Madrid last December. A French newspaperman was killed and the ship's other occupants were severely injured.

Jean Herbet, French ambassador at Madrid, who has been in residence at St. Jean De Luz, France, since the outbreak of the civil war, told an Associated Press correspondent he had received direct warnings from the insurgent Spanish headquarters that they would bring down the Air-Pyrenees plane.

Whether Herbet made representations to Gen. Franco at that time was not known, but French authorities continued to permit the plane to operate back and forth to Spain from Biarritz.

Advances By Mola's Troops
HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 26.—A new insurgent advance was reported today to have shoved Gen. "Milio" Mola's front lines within eight miles of Bilbao.

The advance, an insurgent communiqué from the Salamanca headquarters reported, carried the northern insurgent offensive to Lemona, eight miles southeast of the besieged provincial capital, and half way between morebieta and Galdacano, the next objective.

The line of attack takes the insurgent's line inland from the sea into a sweeping arc extending from the Bay of Biscay south to near Ochandiano.

Insurgent headquarters said the civil population of Lemona had been evacuated before Mola's troops reached the town, most of the residents fleeing toward Bilbao.

A defending garrison, described as a force mostly of Asturian miners, was reported still holding out in fortified parts of the town.

The advances said the government vessel Le Gazpi was hit by insurgent aerial bombs in the Mediterranean and stranded on the beach at Cullera. Many crew members were reported injured.

A Salamanca report stated Gen. Francisco Franco had decreed liberty to all foreign hostages captured from the government's international brigade and imprisoned there. Orders were reported issued guaranteeing that the men soon would be set free and given safe escort to the frontier.

AGE AND YOUTH

Death in the ninety-eighth year of life, as in the case of Mr. Rockefeller, will presumably be more common several generations hence than now. For the advance of medical science and of public knowledge, according to Editorial Research Reports, has cut down infant mortality so appreciably that the aged are steadily becoming a larger proportion of the population.

In 1880, only 3 1/2 per cent of the population were 65 or older. In 1930, those over 65 comprised about 5 1/2 per cent of the population. If present trends continue, this proportion is expected to rise to about 6 1/4 per cent in 1940, 9 1/4 per cent in 1960 and 12 or 13 per cent in 1975.

In 1901, the average expectancy of life was about 50 years. Today, it is around 60—20 per cent higher. Women, on the average, live three or four years longer than men.

The most startling improvement has been in preventing the deaths of children under 1 year of age. In 1880, more than one-fourth of all deaths were of children less than a year old. That figure fell to one-fifth in 1900, one-seventh in 1920, slightly more than one-tenth in 1930, less than one-tenth in 1935.

In 1844 44 per cent of all deaths were of children under 5. In 1910, the figure was only 27 per cent; in 1925, only 18 per cent; in 1935, only 12 per cent. So it is more than an accident that all the Dionne quintuplets survived. Similarly, the child born, say, to the Lindberghs in 1937 will have, other things being equal, a somewhat better chance of longevity than his father and a much better chance than either of his distinguished grandfathers.

Much as the death rate has fallen, the birth rate has fallen even more—from 37 per 1,000 of population in 1871-75 to 28.8 in 1902 and 16.8 in 1935. Births are least frequent in the large cities and most frequent in the farm areas.

The birth rate still is higher than the death rate, but as the middle-aged and the elderly comprise more and more of the population, the death rate will tend to go up again. At the same time, the birth rate will probably continue to fall.

So students of population problems visualize a situation well before the end of the present century in which the number of deaths every year will about equal the number of births. If immigration remains severely restricted, the population will then have become stationary—say at around 165,000,000 instead of the present 129,000,000.

When immigration was heavy, the birth rate among the foreign-born was considerably higher than among the native-born whites. Of recent years, the birth rate among the foreign-born has fallen sharply. In 1930, the number of children up to 5 years of age per every 1,000 women aged 20 to 44 was 499 among native-born whites and 548 among foreign-born whites.

It was 554 among Negroes, but the Negro birth rate was lower than the native white birth rate in every section of the country except South Atlantic states and New England. In 1880, 13 per cent of the population was Negro; in 1930, less than 10 per cent.

FOR A KNEEL DOWN STRIKE

Rev. J. Ernest Stack, Baptist minister and editor of the Christian American, published in Houston, would have the press of the country publish his call for a national kneel down strike.

"Affairs in America have taken a turn that presages a long and terrific conflict between Good and Evil. The church is faced with a challenge which means it must fight for its holiest rights or yield to forces that will destroy the faith inherited from our Christian fathers," he declares.

"The threat comes from Radicalism. Those who cannot see it are pitifully blind. It has been sounded from shore to shore by leeches from under a godless banner, who are leagued against all that is sweet and pure and good. It will uproot the flowers of religion and plant wicked godlessness where they once bloomed.

"I am calling upon the Christians of America to join in a mighty kneel down strike."

THE FIGHT ON HOPPERS

Appropriation of a million dollars from the federal treasury for combating a 1937 grasshopper invasion laid the groundwork for systematic organization in sections where hoppers are expected to be a menace. When reports come to county headquarters that hoppers are appearing in sufficient numbers to threaten crops, ingredients are made available for poison bait at a central location in the county.

The county agent designates one man in each school district to be on the watch and to solicit reports from each farmer in the district. It isn't likely that anything will get by without being reported. For instance, nearly one hundred watchmen are keeping tab in Lafayette county, Missouri.

Possibly the only adverse factor in this arrangement, the Drovers Telegram states, is the length of time that must elapse after it is decided a fight must be made before government aid is available. In the meantime it behooves a farmer whose farm is invaded to start proceedings on his own hook. The idea is to get the poison to the youngsters before they get away from the breeding grounds. One or two sacks of bait will treat the breeding grounds on the average farm.

There is no necessity to urge farmers to put up the best fight possible. After repeated low yields or no yields of various crops, the need to be watchful and aggressive is recognized wherever hoppers are in evidence.

WHEN FIREMEN PROVIDE FUN

From the Ohio State Journal.

Slapstick comedy doesn't happen in real life as often as it might to bring relief from boredom. Occasionally, however, there is an incident which is up-riously funny except perhaps to the principals concerned. Some of them might not derive any great amount of pleasure from the experience.

As an example, the bystanders had a hilarious time at a fire in Los Angeles when the herd of pet goats owned by the man whose house was burning insisted on butting every fireman who made the mistake of stooping over. In fact the struggle with the frisky goats sort of took the firefighter's mind off the real business at hand and the house was burned to the ground. However, as the alert Associated Press reporter explained, the fire had made considerable headway before the firemen arrived, because of the difficulty of detecting the odor of anything burning with the fragrance of the goats dominating the scene from a strictly nasal point of view.

A volunteer fire department can usually be depended upon to provide a lot of good clean fun for the onlookers, a fact which the movies capitalized for many years. Memories of ludicrous incidents involving members of the village firefighting crew still bring chuckles to thousands.

SO WHY NOT TELEPATHY?

From the Boston Globe.

Telepathy is common but hard to verify. Until verified the question is how much of the thought exchange was mere coincidence. A few years ago some eminent scholars at the University of Oxford conducted private experiments which established thought-transference as an unquestionable fact, but they abandoned them because of the unpleasant publicity which they attracted. A professor at Duke university has now reported similar verifications of "extra-sensory perception," the evidence of some sort of sixth sense.

Persons who have definitely had such experiences feel them to be as true as tides and seasons; those who have not regarded all such testimony as self-delusion, either ignorant or willful.

These two extremes, however, may be coming closer together since the invention of a new common device which can pick voices out of the air and turn them into articulate speech. It will be observed that unless this apparatus is turned on, and, further, dialed to a given wavelength, it will not utter a sound, and that, when turned on, the sounds it does utter vary from vulgarity to genius according to how the dial has been turned.

That the mind of man should have been able to create this startling mechanical metaphor of telepathy may be prophetic allegory of an age when attunement to finer vibrations will be as regular a part of the individual's schooling as literacy is today.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charles Stuckey, senior member of a London law firm with considerable reputation, is informed by cable from America that his daughter, Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,000,000 from an American uncle, Colonel Ace Lutman, who has a hold over Stuckey. Stuckey, an ex-convict, is a married man, having her assign her property before Stuckey informs her of the inheritance. Stuckey and Asson, a one-fifth Lutman and Asson go to Colonial to cultivate Jacqueline and her mother, stopping at the same hotel where Mrs. Smith finds herself in dire financial straits. Asson, in the role of a wealthy businessman already has impressed Mrs. Smith as an admirable "catch." Colonel Asson urges Jim to hasten his proposal. Jacqueline is chagrined when the hotel waiter refuses her a room and a bottle of wine unless she pays for it at once. The Colonel urges Jim to follow her to the lounge and dress her. Spurred on by Colonel Lutman, Jim, at the age of a week, tries to convince Jacqueline she should marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 11

"YOU'D HAVE anything you wanted, Jacqueline, if you married me," Jim Asson argued. "You could live where you like and have what you like and do what you like. I can't say more than that, can I?"

"Get up? Try, Jim."

He glanced at her with a puzzled expression on his face. "If there's anything else you want, Jacqueline..."

"There is."

"Then you've only to mention it."

She smiled. "You don't read very much, do you, Jim? Novels, I mean. You can't, or you wouldn't need reminding that when a man asks a girl to marry him it's usual to tell her that he loves her. It may not be true, but it's polite convention to say it, at all events."

"Yes, of course—but I thought—I mean, that goes without saying, Jacqueline. You know I'm frightfully fond of you."

She was shaking her head. "As a matter of fact, Jim," she said, "it's the one thing in the world that never goes without saying. Still, we'll take it as said."

She rose from her chair. "Thanks very much, Jim. It's quite the most original proposal I've ever had."

He stood up, took a cigarette from his case and tapped it on the back of his hand.

"And what's the answer, Jacqueline?"

"I haven't the faintest idea. I've got to work it out—take the minus reasons from the plus reasons—and it's too complicated to do in my head. Let x equal the unknown quantity of affection..."

"Hang it, Jacqueline, I've told you I'm frightfully fond of you."

"All right, Jim," she smiled. "Don't worry. I'll find the answer all right, and as soon as I've found it I'll tell you."

"But can't you tell me now?" he persisted.

She shook her head. "It's pretty rotten, waiting and not knowing and wondering all the time."

"All right, Jim, but it can't be helped. There's x and y to be dealt with. I can make a good guess at the value of x, but I've still got to discover the 'why.' I'll tell you as soon as I know myself."

Before he could say any more she turned and hurried away, and Jim, having frowned at her back until she turned the corner, flung himself into his armchair again and savagely struck a match for his cigarette.

And there, a few minutes later, Colonel Lutman found him.

"Well, my dear James," he said, smiling affably. "Does one congratulate you?"

Asson gave a shrug. "I'm banged if I know."

Lutman raised his eyebrows, and his monocle, as if in protest against his taking such a liberty, slipped from his eye.

"Surely, James," he said, "you

There, a few minutes later, Colonel Lutman found him can't so soon have forgotten whether a charming young lady is betrothed to you or not."

"I tell you I don't know," snapped Asson irritably. "Of all the cold-blooded, calculating, sarcastic little devils!" He made a gesture of impatience. "She wouldn't say yes or no, Lutman. She wants to work it out, she says. She'll tell me as soon as she knows herself."

"H'm!" said Lutman. "It's a pity, but it can't be helped. Time is precious, though, and you must be impetuous, James. You must hover around her like a love-sick shadow, melt her heart with your pleading eyes."

"Oh, shut up, Lutman. I'm fed up with the whole outfit."

"And in the interim," continued Lutman imperturbably, holding out his hand, "I will keep the expensive engagement ring in my waistcoat pocket."

Asson glanced up at him, scowling.

"What's the great idea?" Lutman smiled.

"There's a pawnbroker's establishment in Cobenzl, my dear James," he said. "I noticed it this morning."

"I don't get you, Lutman."

"Nor the price of the ring, James. Hand it over."

With a scowl, Asson took the ring from his pocket and laid it on Lutman's open hand.

"You're a nasty suspicious devil, aren't you?"

Lutman slipped the ring into his waistcoat pocket.

"My dear James," he smiled. "You must try to forgive me. I once lent you a gold cigarette case."

Asson gave a shrug.

Jacqueline did her best to work out the problem which Jim Asson had set her, but she found it more difficult than she had expected to arrive at a definite answer to it. She considered it from her own point of view. The advantages were obvious: no more pinching and scraping; an end of this constant wandering about Europe; security, a home of her own, an assured income for her mother. Against all that must be set the fact that she no longer loved Jim Asson than he loved her. But was it necessary to love him?

For several days she could come to no final decision. Each time that Jim Asson begged for her answer she replied that she was still working it out and he must wait. Why, she asked herself again and again, did Jim want to marry her? She could not get rid of a speaking sort of feeling that there was something behind it which she did not understand; that, in the list of good reasons why she should marry him, the reason for his wanting her to do so was not included. What that reason might be, however, she could not even guess.

She was sitting on the terrace one afternoon, frowning at the river as disapprovingly as her mother had frowned, when Colonel Lutman seated himself in the chair next to hers.

"And what has the Danube done," he asked, "that a charming young lady should frown on it?"

Jacqueline glanced at him and smiled. She always found Colonel Lutman rather entertaining.

"I was just wondering, Colonel," she said, "whether it's better to be broke to the wide on the banks of the Danube or to have plenty of money on the banks of the Thames."

Lutman nodded. "A very interesting speculation, Miss Jacqueline. And the conclusion?"

"She shrugged. "I'm hanged if I know."

"You?" He smiled. "Experience has taught me that, provided one has plenty in one's pocket, the banks of the Styx, or even the banks of the Thames at Rotherhithe, can be quite a pleasant spot, and that without money it doesn't matter whether one is on the banks of the Danube or the Rhine or the Mississippi or the Nile, since it's equally hell anywhere."

"Money isn't everything, Colonel Lutman."

He smiled indulgently. "If I may answer one platitude with another, Miss Jacqueline, money may not be everything, but it is the price of everything that's worth anything. Even of the bare necessities of life. One can't even have a bath without money."

She glanced at him quickly, but he was smiling guilelessly at the end of his cigar.

"And, speaking of money, Miss Jacqueline," he went on, "you must forgive me for broaching a rather delicate question. I am, as you may know, young Jim Asson's trustee, and he tells me that he has asked you to marry him."

THE DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

WASHINGTON—If certain Senator will reach into a filing cabinet of the Senate Agriculture committee he will find a time bomb which will convulse the farm belt.

It is a public document which cost the taxpayers of the country $300,000, but for three months it has been carefully hidden.

The report deals with farm incomes and was compiled by the Federal Trade Commission under a Senate resolution.

Some of the dynamite-loaded facts revealed in the report are:

The first complete and detailed figures ever compiled on the sales, profits and fancy salaries of packing companies, millers and other big firms dealing in farm commodities.

The extraordinary profits made by dealers in farm produce—who were among the most violent foes of the Supreme Court-invalidated AAA.

How grain and cotton speculators manipulated prices on commodity exchanges to the enrichment of themselves and the loss of tens of millions to growers and consumers. These operators also were vehement enemies of the AAA.

Undercover Struggle

The behind-the-scenes story of the Trade Commission's struggle to unearth these closely guarded secrets is as remarkable as the facts uncovered. In some cases investigators were met with open defiance and the Commission had to go to the courts to compel the recalcitrants to open their books. In other instances firms threatened their accounts only when threatened with citation for contempt of the Senate.

Virtually the entire economic staff of the Commission worked on the report and experts who have seen it rate it as one of the most comprehensive and searching ever compiled by the agency.

Yet, when it was sent to the Senate committee it was ordered impounded and merely a brief summary was released, giving no inkling of the sensational contents.

Chairman of the Agriculture Committee is Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith. When the AAA was in operation, the veteran South Carolinian violently opposed amendments which would have empowered the Agriculture Department to examine the books of packers, millers and other farm produce processors and dealers.

Note—Senator Smith has five members of his family on the government payroll.

The big liquor distillers seem to be having a hard time getting a man to fill the shoes of the late Forbes Morgan, uncle of Mrs. Roosevelt, as czar of the liquor industry.

Jim Farley already had turned the job down. General Hugh Johnson wasn't keen about it, and the other day they offered it—with the accompanying honorarium of $75,000—to Charles Michelson, publicity brains of the Democratic National Committee.

To which Michelson, without a moment's hesitation, replied:

"What in hell would I do with seventy-five thousand dollars?"

Economic Accord

Not much has been said about it publicly, but State Department officials, particularly Cordell Hull, are highly pleased at the victory of Norman Davis at the recently concluded International Sugar Conference.

This is the first economic conference in years, regarding sugar or anything else, which has succeeded. Many previous attempts have been made to confer on sugar, all of which failed. This success, Mr. Hull believes, was due partly to the adroit diplomacy of his old Tennessee friend, Norman Davis, partly to the fact that the world is seeing the light of day regarding economic cooperation.

Mr. Hull is a man who believes that big trees from little acorns grow, and it won't be long now before he moves out into wider economic fields.

Power Deal

Henry Wallace's Agricultural Department believes heart and soul in Roosevelt's policy of combating the big power companies, but so bitter has become the feud between Agriculture and the Interior Department that Henry is now playing into the hands of the power moguls.

This particular row is over the distribution of power from the newly completed Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River. It was originally proposed that the Interior Department, whose PWA built the dam, should distribute the power.

Now the Army Engineers have stepped in and claimed the job. And the Agriculture Department, its eyes fixed upon the goal of keeping everything away from Interior, has made a deal to boost the cause of What Wallace and his boys have forgotten, however, is that the Army has been notorious in the past for its sub-rosa deals with the big power interests. Army Engineers helped Hoover and Coolidge sabotage the Tennessee Valley. Army Engineers, in many cases, have resigned to take important executive jobs with the power companies.

Army Game

And it was the Army which was recommended, under cover, by the power companies to take over the accounts of the Federal Power Commission in order to okay the padded capitalization they were trying to put across on the public.

If they get control of Bonneville Dam, the Army Engineers will have the job of distributing its vast wealth of power to whomsoever they choose, at whatever terms they choose.

Merry-Go-Round

Changes are painful in the State Department. The sign reading R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary, is still fixed over the door of the office which Moore vacated six months ago. Molly Flynn, Resettlement education expert, has been offered a scholarship to study in Germany. Standing in the center of the room, in Congressman Bob Mouton's office, is a model of a big ram, which the Louisiana explains is symbolic of his name—mouton (French for sheep). Agriculture's breeding experts at their laboratory near Charleston, S. C., are endeavoring to create a new type of watermelon to fit the average refrigerator. Among foods distributed through Relief channels by Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation is an item of 400,000 cases of fresh grapefruit and canned grapefruit juice.

SEDALIA MAN ON KATY 50 YEARS IS AMONG HONORED

P. H. Handley Completes Half Century as Railroad Employee

In honor of members of the Katy Family who have served fifty or more consecutive years on the Missouri-Kansas Texas Lines, Matthew S. Sloan, chairman of the board and president, gave a luncheon at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas, Texas, on Thursday of last week.

Twenty-three men who have served for a half a century with the Katy Lines attended. Among these men were two well known Sedalians, P. H. Handley and W. H. Neely.

Mr. Handley, who completed his fifty years of service April 1 of this year, is now an engineer in the St. Louis Division, and runs between Franklin and St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Neely, while in his fiftieth year of service, will not complete it until September 1 of this year. His run is from Franklin, Missouri, to Parsons, Kansas, in the Parsons Division.

Invitations to the luncheon, given personally by Mr. Sloan, were mailed on May 11. A special pullman car was provided for the fifty year veterans and their wives to take them to Dallas.

While in Dallas the guests were driven over the city and through the Dallas Fair grounds. The luncheon was held Thursday noon. Mr. Sloan presented each veteran a diamond-studded pin "in commemoration of your fifty years of continuous service with the Missouri-Kansas Texas Lines."

Mr. Handley, while having completed his fiftieth year of service on April 1, will continue in actual service for some years. On April 1, 1887, Mr. Handley started as call boy at Nevada, Mo. Later he was made supply clerk and served under that capacity until he was made store keeper.

He was then transferred to Cheyenne, Kansas, where he served until 1888 when the headquarters were changed to Parsons, Kansas. At Parsons he started as fireman and later was made engineer.

In 1896 Mr. Handley was made road foreman or traveling engineer for the St. Louis division and has served in that capacity ever since. On April 10, 1901, Mr. Handley was married to Miss Mabel Gaines of Fayette. They now have three sons, Fred and Patrick, both of Sedalia, and James, of Houston, Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Handley reside at 419 East Sixth street.

Mr. Neely will finish his fiftieth year in September of this year.

Both Mrs. Neely and Mrs. Handley attended the luncheon.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. ## SUPPLY PLANE COMPLETES A HOP TO NORTH POLE

Carry Provisions To Expedition Planning To Stay a Year

BY CHARLES P. NUTTER
MOSCOW, May 26.—Two of the three transport planes reported to have landed near the North Pole with eight tons of food and equipment to sustain the lives and facilitate the studies of four air trail pioneers.

One of the ships succeeded in landing the Soviet Union's polar outpost—a dot on a vista of ice fields—but the other was forced to land away from the camp and about twelve and one-half miles from the pole.

The third ship still was not reported to have landed but no alarm was felt for it.

That plane, piloted by I. P. Mazuruk, was believed to be still searching for the ice floe camp or for suitable landing space elsewhere on the mighty icecap at the hub of the earth.

The transport that reached the camp was piloted by Vassily Molokoff.

Damage to the radio apparatus at the polar base interfered somewhat with plans to direct the plane. Molokoff, Alexieff and Mazuruk had planned to follow a radio beam into a safe landing.

Regular radio communications from the polar camp, remained in effect, however.

The supply craft had good weather throughout their flight. At one point, one of the three radioed: "There are huge ice fields below us, stretching for many miles, divided only by very narrow fissures."

The cargoes of condensed food and scientific apparatus will be used by Commander Ivan Papanin, commander of the group of four who will remain for a year on the slowly shifting floe.

They will make weather observations and complete other studies through which the Soviet Union hopes to establish regular flights over the Arctic shortcut to the United States. Their quarters will be a collapsible furnished hut which one of the supply ships carries.

MOSCOW, May 26.—(Wednesday)—An official announcement early today said the three supply planes of the Soviet Union's North Pole expedition had taken off from the base on Rudolf Island for the 560-mile flight to the pole.

Blizzards, fogs and generally bad weather had kept the three planes grounded at Rudolf Island since Saturday.

Their mission was to carry a year's supplies and the portable hut in which four men plan to spend a year on the ice at the pole.

Their goal was the ice floe on which the first party of 13 men was landed 13 miles from the top of the world May 21.

At the controls of the planes were three of the Soviet Union's most famous pilots, Vassily Molokoff, A. D. Alexieff and I. P. Mazuruk, all veterans of Arctic flying. Crews of the three planes were believed to total about 15 men.

Damage to the radio apparatus at the polar station added to the hazards of the flight. The pilots had planned to follow a radio beam to the party on the polar floe, but this was believed impossible.

The pilots planned to spread out fanwise as they approached their goal and search for the flag-plane and the advance party of 13 headed by Prof. Otto J. Schmidt.

Their cargoes totaled more than eight tons.

All four planes are expected to fly back to Rudolf Island. Three of them eventually will fly back to Moscow. The fourth, with Mazuruk in command, will remain at Rudolf Island to carry aid to the polar quartet in case of emergency.

The supply planes were prepared to drop supplies by parachute if necessary, but it was not believed this would be required.

The camp is estimated to be now about 30 miles from the pole.

TWO INJURED IN TORNADO IN NORTHWEST MISSOURI
GALLATIN, Mo., May 26.—(P)—Two persons were injured and nine farm houses demolished by a tornado which tore through the southwestern section of Daviess county late Tuesday.

Ben Cox, 55, was found unconscious on the bank of Grand river, about five miles south of here.

Robert Bruner, 18, suffered a leg injury when a large tree was blown down, striking him and blocking the entrance to a storm cave in which the Bruner family had taken refuge.

Fortunately a shovel was found in the cave and M. M. Bruner, farmer, was able to dig a way out for himself, his wife, and four children.

The meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club, to have been held at the home of Mrs. R. J. Hausam, Friday, has been called off.

The meeting was to have been a farewell for the school teacher club members, but as that date is the one set for the "48" club banquet and dance, which most of the teachers will attend, the party at the Hausam home was called off.

OBITUARIES

Funeral of John P. Gass
Funeral services for John Patrick Gass, well known educator, who passed away at his home on West Seventh street last Monday morning, were conducted at the Masonic Temple, Seventh street and Osage avenue at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon with the Rev. A. W. Kokendoff, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating.

A quartet composed of Mrs. E. F. Yancey, Mrs. Charles H. Bard, Robert M. Johns and Edwin Hausam, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. H. O. Foraker, sang the following hymns: "Lead Kindly Light," and "Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide." Mrs. Bard was in charge of the music.

The services were largely attended by many friends. Numerous floral tributes sent by his numerous friends and former students attested high esteem in which he was held.

The following friends served as pall bearers: Dr. F. M. Fulkerson, Robert M. Johns, E. W. Dugan, Ed J. Evans, W. E. Brown and W. H. Cloney.

Interment was made in the family lot in Crown Hill cemetery beside the grave of his wife who passed away July 11, 1930. The Masonic lodge was in charge of the services he having been a member of that order for 59 years.

Robert J. Renfrow

FANS EMBERS OF CODES OF NRA DURING DEBATE

Diversity of Opinion On Maximum Hours and Minimum Wages

NEW YORK, May 26.—The administration drive in congress for federal control of maximum hours and minimum wages in industry has fanned anew embers of the old debate over NRA codes.

A survey disclosed today a wide diversity of opinion among economists, labor leaders, business men and industrialists as to what the proposals actually would mean for the sprawling American industrial machine.

Labor leaders united in hailing it as an important step in stabilizing employment and promoting better working conditions.

Some business men, although professing agreement with certain phases, believed the drive might seriously retard recovery at a strategic point on the uphill climb from depression.

Others stressed that the 40-hour week, most frequently mentioned as a practical maximum, already was observed in the great manufacturing industries which would be chiefly affected by federal legislation. The 40-hour weekly standard also was held to be so widely in effect that most industries would find little difficulty making adjustment to it.

George A. Sloan, chairman of the consumers' goods industries committee and head of the old textile code authority, said a recent survey by the committee showed employment in manufacturing industries at 1929 levels, with shortages of skilled labor reported in some lines.

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, said he was "strongly in favor of the Connery-Bill for a 30-hour week" and noted that "in our own industry we are beginning to proceed in that direction through negotiation with employers to replace the 35-hour already in operation."

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland economist expressed a belief the 40-hour week and 40-cent wage would have "little immediate effect on business."

"It would appear in the long run to be more onerous on the smaller organizations than the larger," he continued. "And in the long run it would require a large addition to federal employment for enforcement. Other than that I don't think it would have any immediate effect."

FLYING BOATS IN PRACTICE FLIGHTS

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., May 26.—(P)—Two big flying boats, which probably will inaugurate regular passenger service between New York and Bermuda next month, cruised over the 783 miles of open ocean Tuesday in what was described officially as survey flights.

Off the record, the crews regarded the trip as something akin to a holiday.

From Manhasset Bay, a 21-ton Pan American Airways plane picked up a tail wind the moment it lifted off the waters and dived into the harbor at Hamilton, Bermuda, four hours and 54 minutes (CQ) later.

The British Imperial Airways boat of 20 tons encountered headwinds on its trip from Hamilton to the harbor here, and settled its hull into the water after five hours and 46 minutes of flying time.

ity board chairman, stressed need of administration of old age assistance by a "single state agency" in a recent letter to Governor Stark.

He said the present setup, which places preparation of pension rolls in the old age assistance office but handling of warrants and checks in that of the state auditor, has made it almost impossible to get an accurate check of the status of federal funds granted the state.

The senate approved placing of preparation and mailing of checks in the office of the proposed state social security commission, leaving the state auditor the duty of checking the pension rolls, and preparing only 115 monthly warrants—one for each county and for St. Louis.

The house committee—Chairman Osburn said—felt that by eliminating requisitions and requiring the state auditor to make a monthly report to the state social security commission, the present system could be retained and still meet federal requirements.

The Casey bill—written by Senator M. E. Casey, Kansas City, with the aid of Senator Allen McReynolds, Carthage—places administration of old age assistance, relief, and child welfare activities under one new state commission, with representatives in each of the state's counties.

Dick B. Dale, Richmond, said he plans to offer an amendment on the floor of the house to take relief administration out of the new setup, leaving it only old age and child welfare activities.

Tucker, the federal auditor, and Ed McDonald, Kansas City, regional director for the federal social security board, told Osburn's committee last night the Casey bill in its original form was sure to meet federal approval. J. D. James, Governor Stark's secretary, accompanied them to the hearing.

Tucker said there had been a lack of cooperation on the part of some state officials, but declined to name them at request of J. R. Baker, Fulton.

FDR RENEWS HIS PLEA FOR REFORM IN COURT ISSUE

Says Old Child Labor Decision Must Be Revised

WASHINGTON, May 26.—(P)—President Roosevelt renewed his plea for enactment of his court reorganization bill last night with an assertion that an old child labor decision must be reversed if his new labor legislation is to be declared constitutional.

Expressing pleasure and gratification at the court's decision upholding the social security act, the chief executive told reporters that he hoped the tribunal would cling to the same human point of view in cases yet to be decided.

The old child labor decision to which the president referred was the invalidation two decades ago of the 1916 act prohibiting the shipment in interstate commerce of products of factories employing children under 14.

The president's new labor legislation not only would bar child labor products from interstate commerce, but also the products of employees who use "oppressive" labor practices.

The president's statement today was made in response to a newspaperman's question whether the decisions of yesterday had altered his plans for the court bill, under which five new justices would be added to the court unless as many older judges retire.

The answer, the president said, was obvious. Many issues vital to the plans of his administration, issues involved in future legislation and in laws previously enacted have to be put to the test by the court.

His message of yesterday, proposing legislation prescribing minimum labor standards, involves four fairly important changes in national policy, he indicated.

He said that if the child labor provisions of the bill introduced in conformity with his message are to be upheld there must be a decision reversing the court's child labor decision of twenty years ago.

Minimum wage and maximum hour provisions of the law, as well as those dealing with employers who defy the unions each, he added, will present an issue with which the court has not yet come to grips.

There, in one message, he added, were four new issues that in all probability will have to come before the court. And, besides, he indicated, past legislation presents vital issues which have still to be decided.

SAY OWNERS OF THE NEW FORD "ECONOMY CAR"

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION WORK IN AGRICULTURE AND HOME ECONOMICS
STATE OF ARKANSAS
UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANICAL ARTS
BENTONVILLE, ARKANSAS
January 27, 1937.

Mr. J. B. Colburn,
Independence, Kansas

I thought you would like to know how pleased I am with my new Ford V-8. I purchased it from you on November 20, 1936. On December 17, my family of four started on a trip to southern Arkansas in this car. We returned on January 6, having driven a total of 4970 miles. Our average driving speed was 60 miles an hour. We used 221 gallons of gasoline and added no oil on the trip, changing it every 1000 miles. As you will see, this is an average of 22.5 miles per gallon of gasoline; and when you consider that a thousand miles of this total mileage was city driving with short stops and the balance at a mountain driving with lots of snow, you can appreciate the economy of this car. It performs better than any car I have ever driven, and if I were buying 100 cars, I would buy Ford V-8's.

Yours very truly,
J. B. Colburn

If you'd like to drive a really fine car and save lots of money, too—try out this Thrifty "60" Ford V-8! Letters from owners quoted here make its economy clear enough. But its quality is something to find out for yourself. Its smooth, quiet, V-8 performance. Its roominess and beauty inside and out. Its comfort and safety and handling ease. Its easy-acting, fast-stopping safety brakes. For in size and comfort, it's the same as the brilliant "85." But its price is lower and its engine smaller. You'll agree when you drive it that you never met a car like it!

WHEAT IN DROP OF
NEARLY FOUR CENTS

CHICAGO, May 26.—More than 4 cents a bushel tumble in the price of May wheat resulted late today from liquidating sales but May Rye, May corn and May oats all scored high prices, steady, May corn $1.40.
Interest centered in May futures contracts of the various grains, this being the final day for May transactions, except for actual delivery of the grain.
About 3,000,000 bushels of May wheat remained today to be settled for.
At the close, wheat was 3 1/2 cents lower to 1 1/2 cent up, May $1.19 1/2 to $1.20, July $1.17 1/2 to $1.18, corn unchanged to 3/4 cent higher, May $1.33 1/2 to $1.40, July $1.21 1/2 to $1.22 1/2, and oats 1/2 off to 4 1/2 advanced.

STOCKS DRIFT
A LITTLE LOWER

NEW YORK, May 26.—Traders suffering an early spell of vacation inertia today refused to lift a hand as shares drifted a little lower.

Throughout the session trading was thin, with the stock ticker halting frequently. Financial observers said the day's business news provided few pegs on which to hang aggressive transactions either way.

Typical of the Street's attitude was the divided advice of brokers. Some said stock should be bought on rallies, others recommended sales on rallies.
Opinion was likewise divergent on the near-term effect of strike news.

Transactions approximately 600,000 shares.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Procurement division—Public Buildings
